

In 1978, when Digital Applications began, it was a computer company, selling and servicing minicomputers. After a short time, access control was added at the request of an access control company who had found it difficult, at that time, to find a company with the technical knowledge to support their product. From this beginning, electronic security, burglar and fire alarms, were added. A 24-hour central monitoring station soon followed. As we evolved from computers to security we continued to add services such as security cameras, intercom systems and medical alert systems leading us to the full-service company we are today.

Digital Security performs a real service to the community in the security work we do, giving our clients peace of mind. We feel fortunate to have served the Hampton Roads community for over four decades. We look forward to continuing serving your security needs for years to come.
